Background

The Gaelic Language (Scotland) Act 2005 (“the 2005 Act”) was passed by the Scottish Parliament on 21 April 2005 and commenced on 13 February 2006 with the aim of securing the status of Gaelic in Scotland. The 2005 Act has three main and inter-related elements:-

It establishes a statutory Gaelic body, Bòrd na Gàidhlig (“the Bòrd”) to encourage the use and understanding of Gaelic and to facilitate access to Gaelic and Gaelic culture, with the ultimate aim of working towards increasing the number of Gaelic speakers and extending the everyday use of the language.

It requires the development by the Bòrd of a National Plan for Gaelic (“the National Plan”) to promote the use and understanding of Gaelic, Gaelic education and Gaelic culture.

It gives the Bòrd authority to issue a statutory notice to any relevant public authority (namely, a Scottish public authority, cross-border authority or the Scottish Parliamentary Corporate Body), requiring that authority to develop a Gaelic language plan.

CHARTS is not such a public body, but has chosen to develop a formal Gaelic Language Policy and to deliver a Gaelic Culture Strategy with Bòrd support.

The National Gaelic Language Plan 2018-2023

The 2018-2023 National Language Plan developed by Bòrd na Gàidhlig raises the following aims that CHARTS will attempt to satisfy through the delivery of this policy:

- Increasing the use of Gaelic
- Increasing the learning of Gaelic
- Promoting a positive image of Gaelic

As a SCIO, CHARTS has the following strategic objectives:

- developing cultural and heritage practitioners and organisations by working cooperatively and in partnership with others;
- developing and utilising effective communication across geographic and sectoral boundaries;
- cooperatively growing our audiences and customers by marketing ourselves and others locally, nationally and internationally;
- developing and delivering partnership projects that will excite, educate and entertain our communities and our visitors; and

- accessing and sharing resources and training in order to bring culture and heritage to a wider audience.

Central to these objectives is the promotion a positive image of Gaelic, which is to be delivered in three key ways:

- Promoting a positive image of Gaelic and raising awareness through: Gaelic media and other media, and Gaelic arts
- Promoting the social, economic and cultural value of Gaelic
- Giving positive messages about Gaelic, bilingualism, and about diversity and inclusion.

7. CHARTS recognises that Gaelic language is culturally distinct from English and as an organisation will endeavour to communicate when using Gaelic in a manner consistent with natural, idiomatic Gaelic speech.
8. CHARTS also recognises the immense regional diversity within the Gaelic language and will set out to respect, promote and make available to our members and audiences where possible, the endangered local dialects and lore of the Argyll area in which the majority of our work is situated, so that they may continue to be part of the life of the region through the output of the arts and other intangible cultural heritage.
